

Knee Disarticulation

The knee disarticulation procedure is a surgical procedure in which the tibia and fibula (shin bones) are separated from the femur (thigh bone). Then the lower leg and foot are removed from the body. No bones are cut in this procedure, which usually allows the patient to bear some weight on the end of the femur (thigh bone).

Photo courtesy of Otto Bock Healthcare

PROSTHETIC
LABORATORIES

Modern Technology. Traditional Values. Proven Techniques.