

Elbow Disarticulation

An elbow disarticulation procedure is the surgical separation of the lower arm from the upper arm at the elbow joint. In this procedure the radius and ulna (lower arm bones) are separated from the humerus (upper arm bone). The lower arm and hand are then removed from the body. No bones are cut during this surgery.

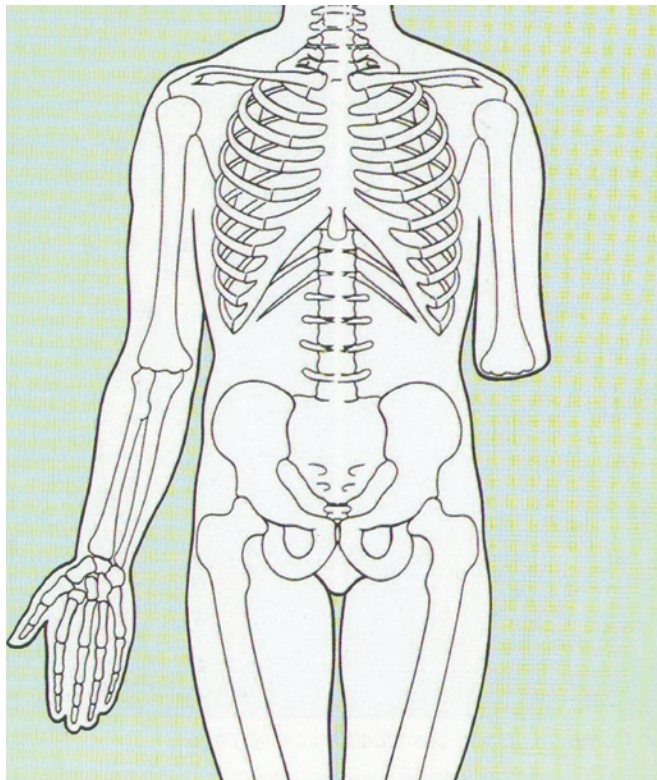

Photo courtesy of Otto Bock Healthcare

Modern Technology. Traditional Values. Proven Techniques.