

Flexible Hinges

Flexible hinges are used by short transradial (below elbow) amputees to translate forearm rotation to the terminal device. The hinges are made of leather, metal, or nylon webbing and are attached to the tricep cuff and the prosthetic socket.

Photo courtesy of Cascade