

Urethane Insert

A urethane insert is often prescribed for amputees with difficult residual limb shapes or for residual limbs with scarring or very sensitive skin. This insert molds itself to the limb, creating weight bearing, relief, and compression areas to absorb and dissipate shock, shear, and mechanical forces that would otherwise be transmitted to the residual limb.

Photo courtesy of Otto Bock Healthcare

Modern Technology. Traditional Values. Proven Techniques.